~ What Parents Can Do to Help Students at Home ~

Have your child rewrite his/her favorite fairy tale, changing it to include themselves and friends in the main roles.
(Or, change fairy tale setting to a current time or place).

Have your child journal regularly, writing about memorable moments of their day.

Have your child write a "proposal" for things they ask you for, giving justifiable reasons for their requests.

Taking advantage of the current Presidential election, have your child write a paper telling who they would vote for and why. They must explain their reasons for their choice.

Have your child write what they learned during the school day per subject each afternoon when they come home. Encourage them to use new vocabulary that supports new knowledge.

Start working on this year's Science Fair Project now by researching science projects online, taking specific notes, and begin writing sample reports.
